I guess the gradual reduction is all that realistically can be done
Thailand researchers studied the effects of transcendental meditation (which creates a state of profound relaxation while remaining awake)